

Master of Education

with a specialism in international education

The Master of Education program has been designed to give our students more flexibility and better options in their studies. As education moves towards and embraces areas of specific need and opportunity, Monash University gives students dedicated specialisations in which to explore and test their learning.

The Master in Education with a specialism in international education is designed to meet the needs and interests of educational administrators, teachers, academics, educational service providers and student support staff engaged in all levels of international education. It is also relevant to staff training officers interested in exploring in depth the internationalisation of education. Specialist studies include globalisation and education, internationalising the curriculum, and international education markets.

The Master of Education is flexible, so you can tailor a program to suit your specific needs. All students complete a core research methodology unit chosen from a suite which gives you an introduction to key social and educational research methods.

You will also choose a number of elective units, and have the option of completing a professional project or a minor research thesis in an area that interests you.

There are three key options in the Master of Education degree, depending on what you aim to achieve in your degree.

Option 1 is to take six coursework units.

Option 2 is five coursework units and a professional project of approximately 8000 words.

Option 3 is four coursework units and a minor research thesis of approximately 16,000 words.

Option 3 provides a great introduction to formal research in education, and can act as a pathway into the Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) program, provided you meet the grade point entry requirements for that program.

You can choose coursework units from a wide range of elective units, covering topics in education, leadership, mentoring, inclusive and special education and curriculum design. For a full list of Master of Education elective units and their availability, visit: www.monash.edu.au/pubs/handbooks/courses/2500.html

English language requirements

All applicants must meet minimum English language requirements. Students with a first language other than English should supply current supporting evidence of competence in English by one of the following means:

- All secondary schooling completed was studied and assessed in English AND successful completion of at least two "English rich" university-level subjects in an institution where English is the language of instruction and assessment of the entire institution, and this is verified by the institution;
- At least two years of study (preferably in the last five years) in a university or approved tertiary institution where English is the language of instruction and assessment of the entire institution, and this is verified by the institution;
- IELTS (academic) of 6.5 with no individual skill score below 6;
- Paper-based TOEFL score of at least 580 with a TWE of at least 5, a computer-based TOEFL score of at least 233 with an Essay Rating (ER) of at least 5, or an internet-based score of at least 90 with at least 24 on writing, 23 on speaking and 20 on listening and reading;
- The successful completion of the Monash University English Language Bridging Program (ELBP).

Note: All test scores must be no more than two years old at the time of application (or accompanied by evidence of substantial studying/working in an English-speaking environment and with work demanding a high level of English communication following testing).

What our students say

Celina Fitt, Master of Education with a specialism in international education

"This course has significantly benefited my career as a secondary school teacher and laid an excellent knowledge and skills foundation.

"I have gained a deeper understanding of how global factors and issues influence local educational practice. My ability to conduct research and compose academic papers has improved. And I see my workplace through new perspectives, especially in terms of cultural diversity and international education.

"The biggest highlight was an educational charity trip to Uganda, Africa, and I am now aiming to conduct PhD studies in the area of humanitarian education."
